Club Car Golfing Cars - A Potential Buyers Guide

Despite the fact that most clubs will rent out carts to their members, avid golfers will probably recognize the savings to be made in the long term by purchasing your own Club Car golf cart. But, with so many excellent golf carts to pick from you are going to need some assistance and that is exactly what we aim to provide for you here.

Choosing The Right Golf Cart Model

A golf cart can be very basic in nature or come with more accessories than you can shake a stick at. The problem here is often that many of the nice looking accessories are simply nice looking and are of no practical use, or no practical use to you. As a result you will have to consider just what you need in your particular cart. Remember too that it is often cheaper to buy a cart which is fitted out to meet your needs without any superfluous bits and pieces and then to add accessories later if and when you feel the need to do so.

Should You Be Looking At Gas Golf Carts Or Electric Golf Carts?

You will have to ensure that your chosen cart is up to the job if you intend to use it away from the golf course and over rough countryside. Club Car golf carts come in a wide range of different models, both gas and electric powered, and are designed to cope with a variety of driving conditions.

Is Your Choice Between A New And A Used Cart?

You can certainly save yourself a bit of money by choosing a second-hand Club Car golf cart and, with such a large market today, you should be able to locate what you are looking for in good condition without too much difficulty. You will also discover that insurance is cheaper for a used vehicle which might be an important factor if money is tight.

Choosing The Right Parts

Customizing a golf cart can be as simple or as complex as you wish to make it but most people enjoy customizing their cart to some degree. For example, you could simply decorate your cart with decal stickers or could go all out and install new wheels, a lift kit, a windshield, lights and much more. Whichever route you choose you can be sure that your cart will stand apart from the others at your golf club.

Many accessories are simply for decoration or convenience but some may well be seen as essential. To the all-weather golfer for example a clear enclosure might well be seen as much more than simply an optional accessory.

Another good accessory to install is a windshield. It can look sporty but its main function is to protect the cart and you from stray golf balls. However, if you do buy a windshield, then it is important to polish it and coat it so that it can withstand a good amount of wear and tear. Buying windshield wipers is also important, especially if you will be driving your Club Car off the golf course. Today you can choose from a range of electric windshield wipers and also, surprisingly enough, from a range of manually operated wiper blades. Figure that one in his day and age.

Shopping for a Club Car golf cart can prove to be expensive if you are not careful so take your time and get it right. The cart itself, and indeed parts and accessories further down the road, can be expensive so choose wisely from the outset.
