

Published based on Thursday Night Football Wagering - Bears Against Dolphins

Thursday Night Football Wagering - Bears Against Dolphins

The Chicago Bears travel to Miami to face the Dolphins in week 11. The Miami Dolphins have recently brought in veteran qb Patrick Ramsey, to try and aid improve their lineup. They are coming off a huge win and their top point total of the season last weekend, when they defeat the Tennessee Titans 29-17. The Bears will try to set up a comeback in the second half of the year as they travel to Miami to take on the Miami Dolphins Thursday night November 18. The Chicago Bears must improve their offensive line in the NFL Draft for 2011 considering this team in front of Jay Cutler has become totally absent for the 2010 NFL year. Cutler has either been on his back or running for his life all year long when betting on football.

The Miami Dolphins permitted on Chad Henne and went back to Chad Pennington. Then Pennington left the game against the Tennessee titans with what seemed like a separated shoulder and Henne was additionally injured. Say hello to the one and only Tyler Thigpen to come to his team's rescue in free online betting. The Tennessee titans defense was excellent at banging out qbs but not halting the Dolphins offense.

The Bears now have single possession of 1st place in the National Football Conference North. The Bears one time again had trouble to run the ball but they did seem superior on the offensive line versus the Vikings.

The Dolphins defense has been strong this year. They've allowed only over 100 yards per match on the ground and just over 200 yards per match through the air. The defense is held down by Karlos Dansby who has been steady though not amazing in the heart of the field. Dansby has become active as a run stopper and breaking down underneath passing routes.

The Chicago Bears offense has been unimpressive this year under the guidance of Mike Martz. Martz might be an excellent offensive mind however if the offensive line doesn't keep the defense in check it doesn't mean much. Matt Forte has demonstrated some promise this year but he has been absent in competition the last couple of competitions. Forte is an excellent pass catching back from the back field but can not become involved in a sustained running attack. The Dolphins defense has the slight edge over the Chicago Bears offense.

The Chicago Bears defense has been their saving grace this season. The return of Brian Urlacher and inclusion of Julius Peppers on the defensive line are making the Chicago Bears defense one of the top 3 or 4 defenses in football. The front line flushes the quarterbacks out of the pocket and the linebackers clean them up on the outside.

Brandon Marshall has been under used by the Miami Dolphins offense this season, Chad Pennington working as the # 1 qb ought to be in great shape for this game. It will be his 2nd full week working with the # 1 offense and he ought to be in good form. The wild cat run by Ronnie Brown is still the Miami Dolphins bread and butter play but Pennington could bring an added dimension. The Chicago Bears defense has the edge over the Dolphins offense.

The Dolphins are the minus 1.5 point favorites with the total over under at 39.5.

You can also find this article published on Thursday Night Football Wagering - Bears Against Dolphins, and on the tag pages defense, football, karlos dansby, national football conference, season, thursday night football.